

BARLEYCORN'S LAST NIGHT MARKED BY CELEBRATION IN KEEPING WITH DEPARTURE

BARS ARE CROWDED, CITY IS FULL OF LIFE MANY HOURS

Stocking Up By Lovers of the Beverage Goes Merely On.

ALL PLACES CLOSED TODAY

Hotel Men, for the Present, Will Not Take Advantage of Ruling Which Permits Sale of Two and Three-Quarters Per Cent Brewed Product.

Old Man Boose died last night with a smile on his face and with hundreds of his mourners in various moods, some happy, others pensive, some tired and still others full of exuberant life. Today the 11 bars of the city are closed and the operating of a hotel consists only of renting rooms and serving meals.

The town was full of people, mostly men, last night and did not begin to thin out until after 11 o'clock, when it was necessary for the out of town visitors to either depart or miss the last car. Those that did miss the last cars had the best of intentions to catch them when they arrived in the city and it wasn't exactly a 1 their fault if they didn't get home until this morning.

Barrooms were filled throughout the evening. The doors did not close until 10:30 o'clock and then it took another half hour to clear them. The majority of the stock in most of the saloons was cleared out but there is still quite an amount on hand.

Incoming street cars brought hundreds from "dry" Westmoreland and the same hundreds carried away a little "stock" to fall back on a thirsty day.

Although the police were prepared to handle boisterous crowds the much talked of disorderliness on the streets failed to materialize. There were few fights and in fact everything passed off exceptionally quiet. Occasionally a group would become loud or endeavor to give vent to their feelings in wailing songs. Only three arrests were made by the officers during the night. The officers were willing to be somewhat lenient and much noise which would not otherwise have been permitted was overlooked.

Until far into the night automobiles carrying "private stocks" were scurrying through the city with their loads. Generally these loads consisted of one or two or three cases of some old vintage which could be conveniently stored away in some obscure corner without attracting special attention.

Other automobile parties didn't carry their goods in boxes but joined in singing the last farewells to Old John.

Something plainly evident last night was the absence of the habitual drinker. The common drunk could not be seen on the streets. The unsteady crowd was mostly made up of persons who generally indulged only to a slight extent but thought they ought to go a little farther in celebration.

Another "class" of buyers consisted of near temperance men, generally known as prohibition advocates. While they did not purchase a drink over the bar the price of one or two quarts would be paid for some good bonded stuff to be laid by for medicinal purposes.

Suitcases, grips and even split baskets were much in evidence also. Just what the contents were would generally be judged by the "heft" of it. Judging from appearances this city did a great business in "transient" trade yesterday. Closer observation, however, discloses that every one with a suitcase was not a traveling man.

This method of transportation was popular among those coming from outside the city, especially Westmoreland county. Crowds poured from the incoming cars at Brima one corner and each half hour saw a new influx headed for the barrooms.

The hotel keepers of the city are now conducting a sort of watchful waiting policy. They have a representative in Uniontown today to learn what is possible on the situation, and if anything develops will hold a meeting to determine on the next steps.

It is rumored that at least two of the local establishments will turn their drinking emporiums into soft drink establishments and sell near beer among the headliners. This however, is not likely to be done until some definite stand is taken on the liquor question as the changing over would necessitate considerable work. One proprietor this morning said the hotel men of Connellsville were not going to take any chances what "stern." "The barrooms will remain closed," he said, "until a definite decision is reached."

JUSTICE AGENTS NOT TO INTERFERE WITH LOW CONTENT BEER

Attorney General Palmer Turns Squarably About in Position Taken Few Hours Earlier.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The Department of Justice, in announcing last night that no attempts would be made today to stop the sale of 2 1/2 per cent beer, flatly reversed the ruling made earlier in the day. This change of judicial front was due to the uncertainty as to how the federal district court of New York might rule on a pending claim by brewers that beer containing that much alcohol was not intoxicating.

But while this uncertainty existed as to beer of lighter alcoholic percentage than that sold generally heretofore, full warning was given that with respect to whisky and all beverages as to whose intoxicating power there was no doubt, every government agency would be set to work in an effort to prevent their manufacture and sale.

How long the sale of 2 1/2 per cent beer might continue would depend ordinarily upon the speed of the court but Congress meanwhile will step to the front in an effort to complete the effectiveness of the war-time law. Exactly what they heretofore have refused to do, prohibition members of the House now will attempt passage of a straight, clear cut bill for enforcement of war-time prohibition.

In a statement given last night to the press Attorney General Palmer says:

"After today it will be unlawful to sell for beverage purposes any distilled spirits and any beer, wine or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquors except for export."

"This prohibition will continue under the terms of the law until the conclusion of the present war and thereafter until the termination of demobilization." As long as the law thus remains in force it must be obeyed.

"This law plainly makes unlawful the sale of whisky, brandy and other distilled spirits and wine. All persons found selling such liquor must be arrested and prosecuted."

TEST SUITS TO BE BROUGHT AT ONCE, PALMER DECLARES

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Test cases on the sale of beverages containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol will be brought immediately by the Department of Justice in all jurisdictions where such cases are not now pending.

"We propose to make immediate arrests of persons who violate the war-time prohibition law according to our interpretation," Attorney General Palmer said today.

UNIONTOWN BARS CLOSE

The Pittsburg Brewing company, it was announced, is preparing to run its plant at Uniontown to capacity in the making of the low alcoholic content beer which will be offered for sale wherever there is a demand.

WINDOWS SMASHED, BUT CLAIM IS MADE SOBER MAN DID IT

Heavy Damage Caused By Unknown Persons in North Pittsburg Street.

POLICE WORK ON CASE

Slight Clues, However, as to Identity of Destroyer; Business Houses and Residents Suffer; Woman Witness Says Act Was Not by a Drunk.

What is considered to be one of the most malicious and contemptible acts perpetrated in the city was the breaking of store windows on Pittsburg street between Peach and Fayette streets in the North End this morning. The police are investigating the case but have only slight clues on which to work.

According to one woman who says she saw the windows broken there were two men concerned. Another person says only one man did the work. The time is given at between 4 and 4:30 o'clock this morning.

It is declared by the woman that the man who broke the windows was not drunk. He did the work rapidly, she said, going on out North Pittsburg street.

The first glass to be broken was the case covering the pictures exhibited in front of Trombo's studio. Next were two panes in Charles Ford's confectionery store. The glass in his windows was of thin material and not nearly as expensive as the plate glass in the front of L. Ramond's wholesale house, which was cracked. It was also pierced near the center.

What kind of an implement was used to do the damage cannot be determined but in each case where plate glass windows were broken only a small hole appears. The thinner glasses were broken entirely out.

A plate glass front of Schiavoni's barber shop was cracked and two thin panes in the front of the Anchor Grocery were broken. Next a plate glass front of the Sinclair Grocery was cracked.

One of the largest windows damaged was that at Krampf's bakery. Here a hole was knocked through the center of the pane and cracks ran through the glass in every direction. Next door to the bakery the glass in the two windows of Newcomer's confectionery store was knocked out. From there the man went to a side window in the residence of Dr. John V. Woods, which he destroyed. He made his escape out Pittsburg street.

NEGRO USES RAZOR

Demands for Whisky Refused, He Slashes Albert Richter.

When his demands for whisky were refused last night a negro murderer assaulted Albert Richter of Highland avenue and severely cut him with a razor. The cutting occurred at the corner of Orchard alley and North Pittsburg street. The negro escaped before the passersby grasped what he had done and could halt him.

Richter's arm was slashed near the wrist, an artery being severed, and he was also cut about the head and face. He was hurried to the office of Dr. H. C. Hoffman where his injuries were dressed.

NINE MEET DEATH WHEN FLYER HITS STANDING TRAIN

Forty Others Are Taken From Wreck, Injured, Some Seriously.

STEEL CARS SALVATION

Traveling at 50 Miles an Hour the Death Train Only Batters the Rear End of the Motionless One: Cause is Yet to Be Determined.

By Associated Press.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., July 1.—Nine persons are known to be dead and more than 40 were injured in a rear-end collision between the second section of train No. 41 and train No. 7, known as "The Westerner," at 2:20 this morning at the Third street station here. All the fatalities occurred in the first passenger car of the rear train, the Westerner, when its engine buckled back through the wooden express car.

Eight bodies were taken from the wreckage and rescuers were working toward what they believed to be two additional bodies. Twenty persons, some seriously injured, were taken to the Brooks Memorial hospital.

Train No. 41 left Buffalo at 12:01 o'clock. The Westerner left a short time later. Railroad officials say that No. 41 developed an overheated journal and was delayed here. A flagman was sent back to protect the rear of No. 41, it is claimed, but the Westerner, approaching at 45 to 50 miles an hour, did not check the speed perceptibly as it rushed into the Dunkirk yards, eye witnesses say.

All the coaches of No. 41 were of steel construction. The rear of last coach was badly battered as No. 75 engine knocked it from the track, but the body remained intact. Three other coaches of No. 41 were also pushed from the rails but remained upright.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—An unidentified tramp killed in the New York Central Railroad wreck at Dunkirk, N. Y., this morning was, according to reports to the Railroad Administration, probably the cause of the tragedy. The mechanism controlling the flow of air from the locomotive to the brakes on the train was found shut off at the place where the tramp was lying.

The official report says that when the locomotive of train No. 7 exploded after telescoping the steel Pullman it drove the wreck into such a tangled mass that B. C. Browley, general manager of the New York Central, who was in Dunkirk, had to order acetylene flame torches to separate the wreckage.

The official report to the Railroad Administration puts the known dead at nine, the mortally injured at three, and the seriously hurt at 17 and does not give the number of lesser wounded, although it is said to be heavy.

The preliminary investigation has developed that on leaving the Buffalo yards the engineer of train No. 7 tested his brakes three times and found them working but had no further occasion to use them until running into Dunkirk when he encountered a caution signal registered by No. 42, standing in Dunkirk station. When he applied the air it acted on the locomotive and tender only and was not communicated to the cars following.

As the wreckage was cleared the crushed body of the tramp was found on the head end, in the narrow space between the tender and the first car of the train. The angle cock controlling the flow of air through the brakepipes was closed. It probably will never be developed whether the man unwittingly closed it with his foot as he used the rock as a step to jump himself up onto the car or whether it was done intentionally.

CARNIVAL CAUSE OF A SPIRITED CONTROVERSY

Central Committee Opposes Exhibition Next Week as Undesirable.

MAYOR GRANTS A PERMIT

In Face of This, Contention Is That City Council, Importuned to Do So, Cannot Stop the Show; Acting Mayor Promises There Will Be Cleanup.

There will be another carnival in Connellsville, the third of the season, next week during the Home-Coming celebration, but it will probably be stripped of the numerous side attractions that popularize a street show. This will undoubtedly be true if Acting Mayor R. W. Hoover carries into effect his declaration last night at a meeting of council that "We'll live up to the letter of the law. There will be no gambling devices at all." All of which means, according to an interpretation of the law by City Solicitor Higbee, that paddle wheels and other games of chance will be barred. These are gambling devices, the city solicitor said.

Some weeks ago Mayor John Dugan granted verbal permission to the firemen to hold the carnival as a part of their plan of financing the annual convention of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's association which will be here during the welcome week. The mayor is in a hospital in Pittsburgh, in a telegram read at the meeting, at which a protest was made by the central committee of the Home-Coming against the carnival, the mayor affirmed his permit and said it had not been revoked. In the absence of the mayor, Councilman R. W. Hoover is the acting executive of the city. Therefore, unless the mayor should regain his health sufficiently to return for the celebration the carnival will have hard sledding if it puts on the usual attractions, provided the acting mayor lives up to his declaration.

J. E. Auger, chairman of the central committee of the celebration, and J. Fred Kurtz, county organizer, were spokesmen of the committee in opposition to bringing a carnival to the city during the celebration. Others of the committee were at the meeting to lend their moral support. Attorney John Dugan, Jr., Fire Chief W. E. DeBolt and Jere L. Cypher, and Councilman C. W. Little opposed the cause of the firemen and the carnival. Referring to a remark of Colonel Joseph H. Thompson in an address before the Legislature at Harrisburg that the "doughboy is the savior of the earth," Attorney Dugan declared that the central committee had no right to oppose the plans of the firemen for the reason that 29 per cent of the members of the organization were with the doughboys in the service.

The chief contention of the firemen was that they must have the moon and that there is no other way to get it; also that members of the finance (Continued on Page Two.)

ONE BID ON FIRE HOUSE

Council Will Borrow Money Before Contract is Awarded.

Awarding of the contract for the remodeling of city hall for a central fire station was held up by council last night until arrangements have been completed for borrowing the money to finance it. The purchasing agent was instructed to secure a loan of $10,000.

The Connellsville Construction company was the only bidder. It proposed to do the work for $8,500. This does not include the concrete driveway to the north of the building, which will cost approximately $2,500 additional, it is estimated. The bid submitted covered all the work on the building, including the changes in the cell department.

Carroll, referee in bankruptcy, explains specifically the terms and conditions of the sale.

The consideration is apportioned as follows, viz: $1,000,000 for the equities in the real estate in West Virginia, $2,000,000 for the equities in the real estate in Pennsylvania, and the balance for the personal property and counties therein; the liens to follow the purchase money."

The agreement is on file in Referee Carroll's office where it may be inspected by any person or party in interest at or before the time of the meeting of the creditors.

ASSURES COOPERATION

Leaders in Movement Here Had Been Somewhat Dubious as to What Part Connellsville Would Take in the Big Event; Now Doubt is Removed.

All doubt as to where Uniontown stands on the Fayette County Home-Coming celebration in Connellsville July 6-9, inclusive, was removed this morning when the finance committee of the celebration received a check for $1,700.62 from C. B. Lenhart, treasurer of the Uniontown contingent of the county organization, to be applied to the expense of the welcome for the service men and women. The amount was raised by subscription in Uniontown.

In view of the fact that the county is to have a celebration of its own July 17, 18 and 19, also that there was opposition by Uniontown women to any kind of a celebration of the character planned in the two cities, the showing is considered remarkable. In fact the finance committee did not dream of receiving this substantial aid from the sister city on the National Pike.

There was a feeling of elation in celebration circles when the check was received not only over the aid thus given toward the expense of the event but for the concrete evidence that Connellsville is thoroughly interested in the event.

LONG LOST BROTHER

Of Fire Chief DeBolt is Located at Portland, Ore.

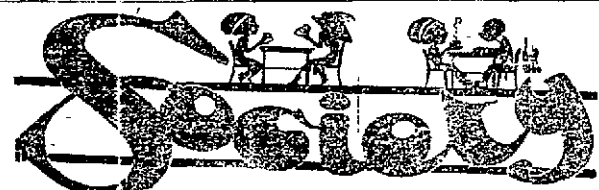

George C. DeBolt, brother of Fire Chief W. E. DeBolt, who left Connellsville 17 years ago without making known his intentions to any of his friends, and from whom no word was received until last recently, has been located at Portland, Oregon. A Connellsville man traveling in the west recognized DeBolt as a barber in a shop in Harvey, Wyo. Upon his return information of his discovery reached Chief DeBolt, who wrote to his brother, but the letter was returned to the writer. Subsequently inquiry was made through the division of the Brotherhood of Railway Employees at Harvey and it was learned that DeBolt had gone to Portland. By this means Chief DeBolt was able to get in communication with his brother, reply to which came upon the day of W. DeBolt, father of the boys, died in a Pittsburg hospital. Since that time a regular correspondence has been kept up between the long separated members of the family.

At the time of his disappearance from Connellsville George DeBolt was a barber in the shop conducted by "Tony" Bufano in the Title & Trust building.

FINES HELD ILLEGAL

P. & L. E. Has no Authority for Arresting Parkers on West Side.

Fines imposed on persons parking cars in the driveway next to the Pittsburg & Lake Erie and Western Maryland station on the West Side are illegal, according to an opinion given members of council last evening by City Solicitor E. C. Higbee. Unless the railroad companies have the place posted as private property they cannot arrest persons parking cars there, he said. Furthermore, he said, "parking" is not a charge under the laws of Pennsylvania.

FINE PROGRAM BY CHILDREN SUNDAY AT DUNBAR CHURCH

"Farmer Boys," in Regulation Garb, Make an Especial Appeal.

Rev. H. L. Humbert, Pastor of Methodist Church, Leaves to Spend Vacation of Month on Farm Near Fairchance; L. d. Hardy Arrives at Dix.

Special to The Courier
DUNBAR, June 30—Fine indeed were the children's day exercises in the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening. While every number merits special mention and every performer deserves commendation, the apparent best hit of the evening were the farmer boys who represented the sowing and the reaping, the seed time and harvest of the Scripture parables. Dressed in overalls and straw hats they imitated the ill effects of the soil, the kings of men apply, and with good grace not even getting perturbed when the line they wanted slipped their memory temporarily, and little Kathryn Gilmore whose four years were no handicap to her acting the dairy girl. Dressed in spotless white with a large bouquet of daisies in her arms she was a picture of sweetness hard to surpass.

No must the choir be forgotten. Between numbers it rendered appropriate selections to the gratification of the audience. All in all the entertainment was one of the best held in Dunbar.

Miss Reine Carroll presided at the piano and did her work in her usual excellent way. A liberal offering showed that the audience was well pleased.

Mrs. J. W. Greaver, Jr. and children returned home Saturday after spending a month at the Tucker Run mountains, much benefited by their vacation.

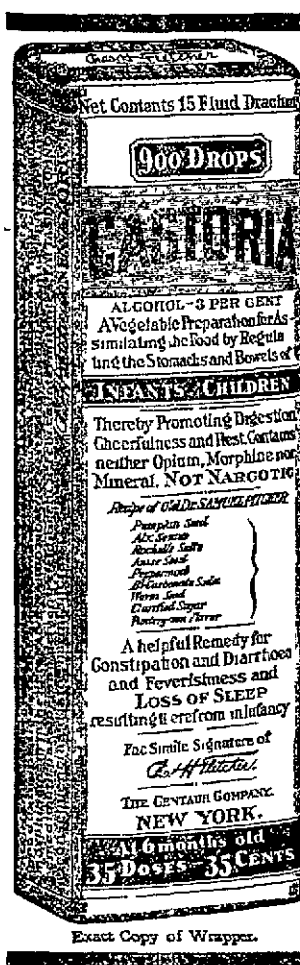

Mrs. R. J. McGee returned home last week after spending a month with friends in Cleveland, O. While in that city she visited Mr. and Mrs. Buell Tarr, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tarr, Mr. and Mrs. Smith and other former residents of Dunbar who have located in the city by the lakes and are prospering.

The annual vacation of Rev. H. L. Humbert, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, began July 1 and lasts until August. There will, therefore, be no preaching services in the Methodist Episcopal church during July. Rev. Humbert will spend his vacation on his farm and in his war garden at Fairchance.

Miss Ida Stark of Ohioville who has been visiting at the Carroll home on Connellsville street took a well-filled basket and spent Sunday in the Irish town mountains. They had a delightful time and returned home on the evening much refreshed.

Mrs. W. H. Williams went to Johnstown Saturday to visit with friends. She is expected home this week. Having been devoting her time to her large music class she sought the rest she needed in the city in the hills.

Mrs. Joseph Myers has received a letter stating that her nephew Ed-

Hardy formerly of Dunbar but now of Irwin and has many friends and relatives in this community all of whom will be glad to know of his safe return and are ready to give him hearty welcome and greetings.

TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 1, 1919.

"KEYSTONE DIVISION" WILL RETAIN ITS HONOR.

The former officers and men of the old Tenth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, and of its successor the 110th Infantry, which served with distinction as a part of the 28th or "Keystone" Division in the war with Germany, have a very just grievance against the general staff of the Army which proposes to assign the insignia and designation of the division to the regular establishment.

Because of the high efficiency, long experience and training of its officers and men, the National Guard of Pennsylvania was early selected for muster into the federal service as a separate division, Pennsylvania being one of the few states having a militia force large enough to form a division after its units had been recruited to war strength. During its service in France the 28th Division made good in every particular. Next to two regular divisions its casualties were the heaviest of any divisions of the combat troops of the American Expeditionary Forces, which is proof that it was where the fighting was going on and that it had no small part in it.

Whatever honor and glory the 28th Division and its several units won in conflict with the Germans rightfully belong to the state whence the organization came. To transfer the name or designation to any other division, as a means of perpetuating that honor, will fail of its purpose and be unjust and unfair as well. As the former officers very pertinently observe, the National Guard of Pennsylvania is well able to take care of the traditions established by the Keystone Division—even more able, in fact, than a Regular Army division would be. Any attempt, therefore, to usurp the rights and privileges, fairly and honestly won by the Keystone Division, and sealed in the blood of hundreds of its members, will have, and very properly should have, determined opposition.

The National Guard of Pennsylvania owes little, if anything to the Regular Army. It was all too clearly established during the war, and particularly after the armistice was signed, that the Regular Army was very much out of sympathy with the National Guard of Pennsylvania, then the 28th Division. Many glaring abuses were committed in the transfer of 28th Division officers, depriving them of promotions won on the fighting front. These unpleasant incidents, of which there were many, were sufficient to cause former officers to resent any attempt to deprive the Guard of the splendid heritage its members have bequeathed to it. But aside from any feeling that may have been engendered by the discriminations against Guard officers during the war, they have every right to object to the plan of the general staff. That these objections will be stoutly maintained there can be no doubt. It is contrary to history and tradition in the National Guard of Pennsylvania to yield ground, once it is gained, and its objectives have always been achieved.

JUSTIFYING OUR CONFIDENCE.

It has been the fear of some and the expectation of many persons that the returned soldiers, when they returned upon their old or new civilian tasks, would display a lack of interest, application and efficiency very much in contrast with the men who remained at their jobs and received no military training. The impression has prevailed that release from the restraints imposed by the habits and mental attitude acquired through army discipline and discipline would result in a reaction temporarily lowering the qualifications of soldiers from bringing themselves in sympathy and accord with the less strenuous routine of daily employment.

That these misgivings are proving to be unfounded is being confirmed by the many evidences that the men who have resumed their places in industry and business have profited by their war experience and are doing more and better work than before they answered their country's call. Colonel Arthur Woods, assistant to the secretary of war, has recently made some inquiry among employers of their experience with service men who have reentered their employ. The result is that returned soldiers, particularly those who had foreign service, are being found more efficient and better fitted for their work. Of more than 600 soldiers re-employed by one corporation 43 per cent have demonstrated themselves to be more efficient than they were before their military training; 52 per cent are put down as just about the same before as in efficiency, and the remaining 5 per cent are rated as having less information states:

"The analysis indicates that the men are more orderly in their routine of work, more punctual and quite a few who were rather difficult to handle are now amenable to discipline. In making this analysis we have taken into consideration the fact that these men have had overseas service for a considerable period and must be given a fair opportunity to readjust themselves to civil life and conditions."

"With reference to the five per cent whom we class as less efficient, we find very few of them have had overseas service. They appear to be somewhat restless and unable to readjust themselves, although tried out on several different jobs. We are still working on them, and endeavoring to make every effort to place them in their proper sphere of action. We believe fully that the service has been very beneficial to the men in many different ways."

"When our young men surrendered their places in industry and business to become soldiers, we never for a moment doubted their ability to meet each situation or emergency as it arose, and with credit to themselves and to the honor of their country, which subsequent events abundantly proved they did. The manner in which they are taking up the arts of peace shows that they are justifying our confidence in them as civilians just as they justified our confidence in them as defenders of The Flag."

If a need exists for a morning paper in Connelville we know of none more capable, and none we would be more glad to see supply that need, than our contemporary. We trust, therefore, that it may realize its ambition to fill the morning field as completely as The Courier fills the evening field, thus giving Connelville the two best papers in Fayette county.

The greeting of the hour, at any time since midnight has been, "Did you get yours?"

That massed band of the Home-Coming Celebration will give Connelville a new place on the musical map, if there is any such thing in the musician's dictionary.

Competition for the "Six Best Cellars" in the city closed last night at 12 o'clock with so many entrants for the prize that considerable time must elapse before the award can be made.

Not to be outdone by their Connelville brethren the Dawson Methodists are now to do something in the church building line themselves, but both congregations will be debtors to the magnificent generosity of Mrs. Sarah B. Cochran.

When Judge Bonnell won out as a democratic candidate for governor over Joseph Guffey, the "dry" candidate, A. Mitchell Palmer, then leader of the latter force, issued the dictum that "the Democrat party is wet." In his decision that "bear bear" can be lawfully made and sold, Attorney General Palmer appears to have concurred in the opinion of Chairman Palmer, and both are confirmed by the decision of President Wilson to lift the wartime prohibition ban just as soon as the Army is demobilized. Plainly Chairman Palmer was not in error when he put the "wet" tag on his party.

It is said many householders are today perplexed by the problem of providing space to store their winter's coal.

Is not the carnival wake next in order to be observed in Connelville?

If letters mailed today have the stamps affixed by "wakes" celebrants of last night, will it be exact to say they are wasteful, even though the rate of postage is a cent less than yesterday?

MICKIE SAYS

SOME FOLKS MOVE THINGS UP INTO MY ATTIC GATHER DUST BUT THE NICE ONES TURN THEM INTO DOLLARS BY SELLING US A FEW THINGS FOR A LIL' WINK AND

Uncle Sam—"Come Right in—Delighted to See You"

DAN MCGANN DECLARES HIMSELF.

Said Dan McGann to a foreign man who worked at the half-game bench, "Let me tell you this," and for emphasis, he flourished a Stilson wrench.

"Don't talk to me of the bourgeoisie, don't open your mouth to speak of your socialists or your anarchists, don't mention the bolshevik. For I've had enough of this foreign stuff, I'm sick as a man as to the speech of hate, and I'm telling you straight that this is the land for me."

"If you want to brag, just take that flag, an' boast of its field o' blue, an' praise the dead an' the blood they shed for the peace of the likes o' you. I'll hear no more," and he waved once more, his wrench in a forceful way, "O the cunning craft of some Russian breed. I stand for the U. S. A. I'm done with your fads, and your wild-eyed lies, don't flourish your rag o' red."

Where I can see or at night there'll be tall candles around your bed." "So tip your hat to a flag like that! Thank God for the stripes an' stars! Thank God you're here where the ramps are clear, away from your kings and cures. I can't say what I feel today, for I'm not a talkin' man. But first an' last, I am standin' fast for all that's American. So don't you speak of the bolshevik! It's sick of that stuff I brag! One God, one flag is the creed I brag! I'm bowlin' for Uncle Sam."

Do You Know That

we have sixty-three grocery stores located throughout the coke region, every one of our department stores have a grocery. It is, we believe, one of our very important departments. Connected with the grocery is a high class, sanitary meat market and a produce market. It is a well known fact throughout the coke region that our department stores are in every respect high class. It is a further well known fact that our grocery provision, and produce departments are superior and excel any in the entire region, not only in high class quality, but in lower prices. It is easy to write advertisements and make statements, but if you are skeptical about statements your test is to visit our stores and investigate. That's the dumb witness we have to offer. See the immense shipments coming in daily, fresh high class. See the entire arrangement, the system of the stores, and you will be convinced that our statement is very modest.

MAN LOSES HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS

"I am sorry I did not hear of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy a few years ago as it would have saved me several hundred dollars. Five years I suffered from indigestion and severe bloating. I grew worse all the time. My doctor said an operation would be all that could save me. I took a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy instead and for the past year have been entirely well." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE LITTLE BOSS"—A delightful production starring Bessie Love, the charming screen star in one of the most pleasing roles of her screen career, is being shown today. The story is one that will please all members of the family and is one that the many admirers of Miss Love cannot afford to miss. A selected comedy is also being shown. Tomorrow Mary MacLaren will be featured in "The Unpainted Woman." Miss MacLaren appears in the role of Judron Trygavson, a hired girl, in whose veins flows the proud blood of a line of Vikings, yet she is considered but a mental, far beneath the pale of recognition of Mullinsdale's best families. For the ostracism to which she is subjected, owing to his hasty marriage, he brutally blames Gudrun. Finally he is killed in a drunken brawl. The dawn brings to Gudrun a new realization of responsibilities—she must alone face the world and support her child. Bravely she takes in washing and with her meagre savings buys a small farm. Miss MacLaren is supported by a cast of unusual excellence.

THE SOISSON.

"OUT OF THE FOG"—The latest screen drama in which the great Nazimova is seen, is a special attraction today. This play, which is a screen adaptation of the powerful stage drama, "Ception Shrivels," made famous by Nazimova to theatregoers in her long and successful New York run, gives this distinguished star two roles of widely different character. In it she is seen as both the mother and daughter at different periods of the play, characters which for range of emotion it would be difficult to duplicate. Deep and heartrending as the drama is, there are at the same time many whimsical and delightful moments, a change from tears to laughter which would tax to the utmost the ability and art of another actress but which to this woman of many moods, comes naturally and can be played. It is a play replete with strong power and subtle charm—bringing vividly to the imagination the griefs and joys of the ardent characters portrayed. Supporting Nazimova is a cast of sterling players numbering such actors as Charles Bryant, Henry Harmon Tom Blake, Hugh Jeffrey and others. A selected comedy is also being shown. Tomorrow and Thursday William Russell will be featured in "Brass Buttons," an unusually attractive production.

"MIRACULOUS" IS THE WORD CHOSEN BY J. L. KEEFER

USED BY DUNBAR SCHOOL TEACHER TO DESCRIBE NERV-WORTH.

Self and Wife Quickly Rescued from Distressing State of Ill Health.

Everybody in this community knows the value of the following extraordinary endorsement, which was given but a few days ago. In source and character the statement is of the first order.

Connellsville Drug Co.—I procured a bottle of Nerv-Worth from you for my wife. She was very nervous. Had kidney and bladder trouble. Had pains in the small of her back. Very weak and rundown. Bad stomach and poor digestion. While living in bed she would startle and jump, and was greatly alarmed at her condition. Could not get restful sleep—and all tired out.

I was also very nervous and in a weakened condition. When I would sit down would fall to sleep. I teach school and do newspaper writing for the Connellsville Courier and the Genius, of Uniontown and while engaged in writing would feel drowsy. I found I was in bad shape and was losing strength and while at work in my garden I would tire out and had to rest. The doctor told my wife all her troubles came from weak nerves.

We have used two bottles of Nerv-Worth and the results, with both of us, have been miraculous. All the troubles mentioned have left us and we are feeling fine, for our age. All nervousness is gone and we are both strong and vigorous. No pains nor aches. Appetite and digestion fine and we can work and not feel tired out. We regard Nerv-Worth as the most wonderfully beneficial remedy we have ever taken and it was prompt and permanent in its effects. We certainly recommend Nerv-Worth to all.

J. L. KEEFER,
Dunbar, Pa.

This Is Buttermilk Day

Although it has no relation to the effective date of war-time prohibition, the designation by the Department of Agriculture of today as "Buttermilk Day" is not without interest. Every man, woman and child in the United States, including Hawaii, Philippines and Porto Rico is expected to drink buttermilk. If procurable, all handlers of milk, including cows, are urged by the department to see that there is an extra large supply for the day, because it is expected there will be a large demand for something to drink besides water.

Somebody connected with the department says that buttermilk is "one of the best drinks in the world." This statement of itself ought to create a wonderful demand for what 50 years ago was dumped in the corner of the hogan for the hogs to wallow in, it not being considered of any food value. The statement goes farther and says "the man who drinks buttermilk regularly and copiously is doing a good turn for himself."

Buttermilk Day, it is hoped, will remind many people of this drink, introduce it to others, and be the beginning of a greater consumption of buttermilk that will contribute to the health and happiness of the consumers.

It is pointed out that, while straight buttermilk is an excellent drink, there are a number of delicious combinations. To disguise it or to make the drinker think of something else while observing the day, almost anything can be added—except water—there is enough of that.

Aside from its food and beverage qualities, buttermilk is said to possess medicinal qualities. Many physicians prescribe it in the treatment of certain intestinal disorders. The bacteria that brings about the chemical change by which buttermilk is produced is believed by many physicians and bacteriologists to destroy certain other organisms that, in the human body, tend to hasten senility.

Pieces of Eight

Being the Authentic Narrative of a Treasure Discovered in the Bahama Islands in the Year 1903—Now First Given to the Public.

BY RICHARD L. CALLENDER

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Company

I was still in my trap; it seemed more terrible than ever, now that I could see freedom so close, hear my voice calling to me, singing the morning song of the sea. But in the caverns behind me, I heard another mocking song, and I felt a cold breath on my cheek, for death stood by my side again.

"The treasure!" he whispered, "I need you to guard that. The treasure you have risked all to win—the treasure for which you have lost—your treasure! You cannot escape. Go back and count your gold. 'Tis all good money! Ha! ha! 'Tis all good money!"

The illusion seemed so real to me that I cried aloud: "I will not die! I will not die!"—cried it so loud, that anyone in a passing boat might have heard me, and shuddered, wondering what poor ghost it was wailing among the rocks.

But the fright had done me good, and I moved myself for another effort. If only I could wriggle past that contraction in the middle, I should be safe. And if I stuck fast midway! But the more I measured the width with my eye, the less the narrowing seemed to be. To be so slightly perceptible, it could hardly be enough to make much difference. Caution whispered that it might be enough to make the difference between life and death. But already my choice of these two august alternatives was so limited as hardly to be called a choice. On the one hand, I could worm my way back through the caves and tunnels through which I had passed, and try my luck again at the other end.

"With half a dozen matches!" sneered a voice that sounded like Tobias. "Precisely!" and the horror of it was more than I dared face again anyway. So there was nothing for it but this aperture, hardly wider than one of those deep stone slits that stood for windows in a Norman castle. It was my last chance, and I meant to take it like a man.

I stood for a moment nerving myself and taking deep breaths, as though I expected to take but few more. Then, my left arm extended, I entered sideways, and began to edge myself along. It was easy enough for a yard or two, after which it was plain that it was beginning to narrow. Very slightly indeed, but still a little. However, I could still go on, and I could still go back. I went on—more slowly it is true, yet still I progressed. But the rock was perceptibly closer to me. I had to struggle harder. It was beginning to hug me—very gently—but it was beginning.

I paused to take breath. I could not turn my head to look back, but I judged that I had come over a third of the way. I was coming up to the waist that I had feared, but I could still go on—very slowly, scarce more than an inch at every effort; yet every inch counted, and I had lots of time. My feet and head were free—which was the main thing. Another good push or two, and I should be at the waist—should know my fate.

I gave the good push or two, and suddenly the arms of the rock were around me. Tight and close, this time, they hugged me. They held me fast, like a rude lover, and would not let me go. My knees and feet were fast, and the walls on each side pressed my cheeks. My head too was fast. I could not move an inch forward—and it was too late to go back!

Panic swept over me. I felt that my hair must be turning white. Presently I ceased to struggle. But the rocks held me in their giant embrace. There was no need for me to do anything. I could go on resting there—it was very comfortable.

And then I felt something touching my feet running away and then touching them again. O God! It was the incoming tide! It would—And then I prepared myself to die. I suppose I was light-headed, with the strain and the lack of food, for, after the first panic, I found myself drowsily, almost luxuriously, making pictures of how brave men had died in the past—brave women too. I fancied myself in one and another situation. But the picture that persisted was that of the Conqueror during the French revolution.

Then the picture vanished, as I felt the swish of the tide round my ankles. It was soon up to my knees.

It was up to my knees—it was creeping past them—and it was making that hollow song in the caves behind me that had seemed so kind to me that very morning, the song it had made to Calypso. . . . that far-off light under the moon.

I turned my eyes over the sea—I could move them, at all events; how gloriously it was shining out there! And here was I, helpless, with arms extended, as one crucified. I closed my eyes in anguish, and let my body relax; perhaps I dozed, or perhaps I fainted—but, suddenly, what was that that aroused me, summoned me back to life? It seemed a short, sharp sound of firing! I opened my eyes and looked out to sea, and then I gave a great cry:

"Calypso! Calypso!" I cried. "Calypso!" and it seemed as though a giant's strength were in me—that I could rend the rocks apart. I made a mighty effort, and, whether or not my relaxation had made a readjustment of my position, I found that for some reason I could move forward again, and, with one desperate wriggle, I had my head through the narrow space. To wrench my shoulders and legs after it was comparatively easy, and, in a moment, I was safe on the outer side, where, as I had surmised, the aperture did widen out again. Within a few moments, I was on the edge of the sea, had dived, and was swimming madly toward—

But let me tell what I had seen, as I hung there, so helpless, in that crevice in the rocks.

CHAPTER IX.

I had seen, close in shore, a two-masted schooner under full sail sweeping by, as if pursued—and three negroes kneeling on deck, with leveled rifles. As I looked, a shot rang out, from my right, where I could not see, and one of the negroes rolled over. Another shot, and the negro next him fell sprawling with his arms over his forehead.

At that moment, two other negroes emerged from the cabin hatchway, half dragging and half carrying a woman. She was struggling bravely, but in vain. The negroes—evidently acting under orders of a white man, who stood over them with a revolver—were dragging her toward the main mast. Her head was bare, her hair in disorder, and one shoulder from which her dress had been torn in the struggle, gleamed white in the sunlight. Yet her eyes were flashing splendid scornful fires at her captors; and her laughter of defiance came ringing to me over the sea. It was then that I had cried "Calypso!" and wrenched myself free.

The next moment there came dashing in sight a sloop, also under full canvas, and at its bow, a huge white man, with a leveled rifle that still smoked. At a glance, I knew him for Charlie Webster. He had been about to fire again, but, as the man dragged Calypso forward, he paused, calm as a rock, waiting, with his keen sportsman's eyes on Tobias—for, of course, it was he.

"You—coward!" I heard his voice roar across the rapidly diminishing distance between the two boats, for the sloop was running with power as well as skill.

Meanwhile, the men had lashed Calypso to the mast, and even in my agony my eyes recorded the glory of her beauty as she stood proudly there—the great sails spread above her, and the sea for her background.

"Now, do your worst," cried Tobias, his evil face white as wax in the sunlight.

"Fire, fire—don't be afraid," rang out Calypso's voice, like singing gold.

"Now, Do Your Worst!" cried Tobias.

At the same instant, as she called Tobias sprung toward her with raised revolver.

"Another word, and I fire," shouted the voice of the brute.

But the rifle that never missed its mark spoke again. Tobias' arm fell shattered, and he staggered away screaming. Still once more, Charlie Webster's gun spoke, and the staggering figure fell with a crash on the deck.

"Now, boys, ready," I heard Charlie's voice roar out again, as the sloop tore alongside the schooner—where the rest of the negro crew with raised arms had fallen on their knees, crying for mercy.

All this I saw from the water, as I swam wildly toward the two boats, which now had closed on each other, a mass of thundering canvas, and screaming and cursing men—and Calypso there, like a beautiful statue, still lashed to the mast, a proud smile on her lovely lips.

Another moment, and Charlie had sprung aboard, and, seizing a knife from one of the screaming negroes, he cut her free.

His deep calm voice came to me over the water.

"That's what I call courage," he said. "I could never have done it!"

"The 'king' had been right. He knew his daughter."

By this I was nearing the boats, though as yet no one had seen me. They were all too busy with the confusion on deck, where four men lay dead, and three others still kept up their gibberish of fear.

I saw Calypso and Charlie Webster stand a moment looking down at the figure of Tobias, prostrate at their feet.

"I am sorry I had to kill him," I heard Charlie's deep growl. "I meant to keep him for the hangman."

But suddenly I saw him start forward and stamp heavily on something.

"No, you don't!" I heard him roar, and I learned afterward that Tobias, though mortally wounded, was not yet dead, and that, as the two had stood looking down on him, they had seen his hand furtively moving toward the fallen revolver that lay a few inches from him on the deck. Just as he had grasped it, Charlie's heavy boot had come down on his wrist. But Tobias was still game.

"Not alive, you English brute!" he was heard to groan out, and, snatching free his wrist too swiftly to be prevented, he had gathered up all his remaining strength, and hurled himself over the side into the sea.

I was but a dozen yards away from him, as he fell; and, as he rose again, it was for his dying eyes to fix with a glare upon me. They dilated with terror, as though he had seen a ghost. Then he gave one strange scream, and fell back into the sea, and we saw him no more.

It will be easier for the reader to imagine, than for me to describe, the look on the faces of Calypso and Charlie Webster, when they saw me appear at almost the same spot where poor Tobias had just gone bubbling down. Words I had none for I was at the end of my strength, and I broke down and sobbed like a child.

"Thank God you are safe—my treasure, my treasure!" was all I could say, after they had lifted me aboard, and I lay face down on the deck, at her feet. Swiftly she knelt by my side, and caressed my shoulder with her dear hand.

All of which—particularly my reference to "my treasure"—must have been much to the bewilderment of the good simple-hearted Charlie, towering, innocent-eyed, above us. I believe I stayed a little longer at her feet than I really had need to, for the comfort of her being so near and kind; but, presently, we were all aroused by a voice from the cliffs above. It was the "king," with his bodyguard, Erebus and the crew of the Flamingo—no Samson, alas! The sound of the firing had reached them in the woods, and they had come hurrying to discover its cause.

So we deferred asking our questions, and telling our several stories, till we were pulled ashore.

As Calypso was folded in her father's arms, he turned to me: "Didn't I tell you that I knew my daughter?" he said.

"And I told you something too, O king," I replied, my eyes during at last to rest on Calypso with the love and pride of my heart.

"And where on earth have you been, young man?" he asked, laughing. "Did Tobias kidnap you too?"

It was very hard, as you will have seen, to astonish the "king."

But, though it was hard to astonish and almost impossible to alarm him, his sense of wonder was quite another matter, and the boyish delight with which he listened to our several stories would have made it worth while to undergo tenfold the perils we had faced. Our stories, said the "king," were quite in the manner of "The Arabian Nights," dovetailing one into the other.

"And now," he added, "we will begin with the 'Story of the Murdered Slave and the Stolen Lady.'"

Calypso told her story simply and in a few words. The first part of it, of which the poor murdered Samson had been the eloquent witness, needed no further telling. He had done his brave best—poor fellow—but Tobias had had six men with him, and it was soon over. Her they had gagged and bound and carried in a sort of improvised sedan chair; Tobias had done the thing with a certain style and she had to admit—with absolute courtesy.

When they had gone a mile or two from the house, he had had the gag taken from her mouth, and, on her promise not to attempt to escape (which was, of course, quite impossible), he had also had her unbound, so that her hurried journey through the woods was made as comfortable as possible.

They were making, she had gathered—and as we had surmised—for the northern shore, and, after about a three hours' march, she heard the sound of the sea. On the schooner she had found a cabin all nicely prepared for her—even dainty toilet necessities—and an excellent dinner was served, on some quite pretty china, to her alone. Poor Tobias had seemed bent on showing—as he had said to Tom—that he was not the "carrion" we had thought him.

After dinner, Tobias had respectfully asked leave for a few words with her. He had apologized for his action, but explained that it was necessary—the only way he had left, he said, of protecting his own interests, and safeguarding a treasure which belonged to him and no one else, if it belonged to any living man. It had seemed to her that it was a monomania with him.

While he was talking, she had made up her mind what she would do. She would tell him the plain truth about her doubts, and offer him what remained of them as a ransom. This she did, and was able at last to persuade him that, so far as anyone knew, that was all the treasure there was, and then the digging among the ruins of the old house was a mere fancy of her father's. There might be something there or not—and she went so far as to give her word of honor that, if anything was found, he should have his share of it.

Tobias had seemed impressed, and promised his answer in the morning, leaving her to sleep—with a sentry at her cabin door. She had slept soundly, and awakened only at dawn. As soon as she was up, Tobias had come to her, saying that he had accepted her offer, and asking her to direct him to her treasure.

SPENDS THIRD OF 67 YEARS BEHIND BARS

Virginia Man Serves Year in Prison for Each $3.10 Charged as Stolen.

That crime pays small dividends was shown in the case of a man who gave his name as Dr. Frederick G. Martin, sixty-seven years old, draftsman, of Richmond, Va., whom the Bertillon department of the office of the Cleveland police department identified as Fred Haupt.

During his life Haupt, according to the records, has spent 22½ years behind the bars for crimes that netted him a total of $70. For each $3.10 that he has obtained by crooked methods, according to the records, he has spent one year in jail or penitentiary.

Haupt took the stand only to reply to a charge of suspicious person. Judge Howells handed him a card containing his Bertillon record.

"Is that your record?" asked the judge.

"It is," replied the prisoner, "but it is not entirely correct."

"Well, we will correct any slips in it," declared the judge as he gave a sentence of $50 and costs and 30 days in the workhouse.

Haupt came under police notice first in 1882 in Philadelphia on a charge of obtaining $5 by false pretenses. He served two years for this crime in the Philadelphia county jail.

According to the Bertillon records other amounts netted by his various exploits and the terms served are: Watch valued at $10, four years; ring valued at $20, two years; cash, $13.75, three and a half years; cash, $5, and umbrella, three years; cash, $6, two years.

Requisites for Summer Outings

The call of the wild makes itself heard in the cities but finds few listeners in the rural districts. There the call of summer—resort's entices those who have had enough of solitude and are looking to be refreshed by companionship rather than quiet. The shops are full of outtings—out the needs of everybody bound a erywhere, whether to the wilderness, the mountains, the sea or cityward and it is noteworthy that stout, service suits find a place in all displays. These are intended for women who will tramp, climb, tramp ride and enjoy living out doors for a time this summer, and they are the straws that show the direction of the wind, for all the best outfitters save inexpensive outing suits of this kind.

A suit that will do to live in come what may in way of weather and roughing it, is shown above at the right. It provides knickerbockers with leggings attached, a detachable skirt that buttons at the front, and a good-looking coat with big patch pockets.

One can imagine the blouse of brown linen, pongee, cotton or shirting silk and whatever stout boots are comfortable. The hat might be of cloth, felt or straw so long as it fits well and shades the eyes a little.

Where no very strenuous demands are to be made upon an outing dress the outfit at the left may be chosen to fit in with almost any background. It has a skirt of strong ribbed silk bound with a plain wool cloth and a coat of the same material as this binding. Large buttons are set down the front by way of ornament for the skirt and the coat is finished with shawl collar and patch pockets. There is an odd bag to match this coat, that will carry a good many things—a little lunch, a book, writing requisites, or a bit of needlework. A Panama hat fits into the scheme of things here and carries a dash about its crown.

RENT PROBLEM SOLVED IN ASIA

Dwellers' Had No Fear of the Landlord.

FIRST APARTMENT HOUSES

Homes of the Troglodytes in Cappadocian Valley in Asia Minor Were Shaped by Eroding Action of Flowing Water Some 2,000 Years Before Christ—Each Successive Generation Has Helped Make Dwellings More Habitable

Refutation of the common belief that apartment houses are a development of modern methods in building and that the idea of housing 30 to 50 families under one roof was thought of first in the nineteenth century is contained in an article on "The Cave Dwellers of Asia Minor," published in the National Geographic Magazine. The late Dr. J. R. Stillingfleet, a traveler and explorer the author of his inspection of the land of the Troglodytes whose homes in the Cappadocian valley were shaped by the eroding action of flowing water some 2,000 years before Christ, and stand today, "walk ups" it is true but nevertheless nature's own apartment houses. The habitations are cone-shaped. Pumice stone is the material of which they are made, and to protect them from the action of rain nature provided them with roofs of lava that was belched from nearby volcanoes. Compared to those of more modern civilization the homes of the cave dwellers lack much that makes for comfort. Needless to say, they are not provided with lighting systems, running water, elevators, superintendents, dumb-waiters and bellboys. But in their favor is the fact that no rent need be paid nor leases signed, no neighbors' children can disturb one because the floors are of thick stone and burglars find business unprofitable because once the Troglodytes family turns in for the night, the "staffs" is pulled up after them.

Improve Their Homes. The present generation of Troglodytes has improved on the dwellings left them by their ancestors. In fact each succeeding generation has done its bit to make the stone houses more habitable. For instance, Doctor Stillingfleet explains that in some locations, where the simple cones were the original dwellings, the Troglodytes have Improved the situation by building fences of pumice stone in front of them.

Apparently the cones already were standing when the forefathers of the present Troglodytes entered the Cappadocian valley. They were solid, however, and considerable work was necessary to make apartment houses of them.

Primitive tools were used to cut entrances and once the first hole was made, the workers spread themselves, so to speak, and proceeded to enlarge the space inside. The entrance tunnels branched off into rooms, windows were then cut, and the Troglodytes moved in. Everything portable that was owned by the Troglodyte was carried into his apartment and stored away in the store room.

The mere fact that a cone already was inhabited made no difference to a Troglodyte who liked its appearance. If he found a friend living inside, he burrowed a home under or over that friend's home. In many instances, Doctor Stillingfleet wrote, cones were found to be or to have been used by four or five families. The entrances were found level with the ground in many cases, while on the other hand there were cone dwellings the entrances to which were located far above the surface.

Evidently the Troglodyte of ancient times was a long-legged strong toed individual. Small cliffs in the surface of the cones' side were used in climbing to and from the apartments. Many of the Troglodytes of today the article explains, use a pole in entering or leaving the house.

Use Pole for Stairway. And the modern Troglodyte, using a long wooden pole as a means of entering his home shows little progress in architecture. None of his ancestors were brought up to the fresh air habit. Their sleeping rooms for the most part were not constructed so that air might circulate. Examination of the interior rooms indicates that the Troglodytes of the pre-Christian era were content to live in almost total darkness.

So today their descendants pay little attention to light and air. Fresh air and sunlight find their way in just one room. That is located at the entrance. The other rooms are always in inky blackness, unless the occupants of the house let the wind and rain exert their forces on his walls. Thus a window may force its presence upon them.

You Just Try NR For That Indigestion

Get your organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination working in harmony and watch your trouble disappear. NR does it or money back.

One Day's Test Proves NR Best

The stomach only partly digests the food we eat. The process is finished in the intestines where the food is mixed with bile from the liver. It must be plain to any sensible person who realizes this that the stomach, liver and bowels must work in harmony if digestive troubles are to be avoided or overcome.

This fact also explains why sufferers from indigestion also suffer more or less from headaches, biliousness and constipation.

If you are one of the many unfortunate persons who cannot eat without suffering afterward, if you are constipated, have bilious spots, headaches, coated tongue, bad breath, variable appetite, are nervous, losing energy and feel your health slipping away, take this advice and get a box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) right today and start taking it. Give it a trial for a week or two.

and just see how much better you feel. See how quickly your sluggish bowels will become as regular as clock work, how your coated tongue clears up and your good old-time appetite returns. See how splendidly your food will digest and how your energy, "pop" and "glister" revive. Just try it.

You take no risk whatever for Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is only $25 a box, enough to last twenty-five days, and it must help and benefit you to your entire satisfaction, or money returned.

Five million boxes are used every year—one million NR Tablets are taken by all people every day—that's the best proof of its merits. Nature's Remedy is the best and safest thing you can take for biliousness, constipation, indigestion and similar complaints. It is sold guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

LABOR LIKELY TO BE SCARCE FOR A PERIOD OF YEARS

Steadily Improving Business Will Absorb the Available Supply.

MUCH WORK IS TO BE DONE

Will Have to be Spread Out Over a Period of Years; Cannot All Be Done in a Year or Two; Deflation Will Come After the Work is Done.

Discussing prospective labor conditions particularly in the iron and steel, coke and related trades the American Metal Market makes these observations:

"All observers now agree that labor is very likely to be scarce in the United States for a period of years. There may be those who do not observe who hold a different opinion but that does not count. The observers who are chiefly those who are engaged in employing labor, should certainly know.

"Everyone agrees that business in the United States is improving and is going to continue to improve. Less labor, therefore, will be available in future than is available now while in addition to that factor there is the heavy emigration that is clearly in prospect. It is doubtful whether anything like as many men will emigrate as now express an intention to do so but if even one-third as many were to leave the country in the next six months it would seriously affect the situation.

"Reports from time to time have shown how light coaling operations are in the Connellsville region. For several weeks past The Courier has reported production in the Connellsville and Lower Connellsville regions at a trifle over 100,000 tons a week and there was one week that ran below even that mark. For a large part of last year production ranged between 325,000 and 350,000 tons a week. With such circumstances, one would not expect to find anything but a large surplus of labor in the region, yet the reverse is the case. Some operators have found a little difficulty in the past week or two in maintaining such working forces as they needed to fill their orders.

"The situation as to labor is therefore fairly clear. The large amount of work this country has to do will have to be spread over a period of years. The work cannot all be done in one year or two years. There will be more capital than labor and some of the capital will have to wait.

"As to wage rates the theory was very good that wages should not decline until the cost of living had declined but the cost of living is not likely to decline much if labor is scarce and even if it did wage rates do not decline when labor is scarce. Human nature is much the same. Manufacturers in their turn may claim that they cannot reduce prices because costs are high but if the commodities they produce are scarce they do not reduce prices even if they could 'afford' to do so.

"The situation is perhaps unfortunate but it cannot be altered. A progressive deflation in everything might be a good thing, but it is not going to occur until after the work is done and deflation on a really large scale is hardly likely to begin for a period of many years, if indeed the deflation that has been uppermost in men's minds in the past few months ever does occur. When deflation comes it will probably be not really of the war time rise but rather of the inflation that will soak into the situation in the next few years.

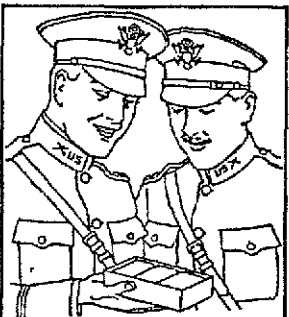

workmen to foreign countries, as is expected it is confidently believed that those remaining will simply apply themselves with greater diligence—just as they did during the stress period of the war—to increase individual efficiency and output, thereby making up for any discrepancy in numbers.

Consideration of the facts leave the operators in a more complacent frame of mind than employers in other sections or other industries where conditions such as prevail in the coke region, are lacking.

Our Family Laundry Service —what it is

A help that will simplify your particular washday problems—such as our Family Laundry Service

If you are one of the many housewives who prefer to do some of their ironing themselves, and to have the washing done "out" this service will appeal to you.

These are its features:

Our driver calls for your family bundle at a definite time each week, and we do your washing in our customary considerate and sanitary manner.

Also we iron the flat pieces, like tablecloths, bed linens, and towels. The other articles, all immaculately clean, and starched when necessary, we carefully fold and leave you to finish.

Our driver delivers the bundle to you again at a definite time—everything as sweet and clean as you could wish, and the flat pieces finished in a way that will delight you.

We relieve you of the steam, splashing, muss and toil of the washtub—and what is of equally vital concern to you as a thrifty housewife, there is no boiling, no rubbing and no bleaching to wear out household linens and garments. Our method is simply one of thorough sousing and rinsing in clean, soft water and suds of pure white soap.

To you we leave only the ironing of the lighter pieces.

Doesn't this appeal to you as being immensely easier and much more economical than the antiquated scrub board way?

We can save time, labor and clothes for you—telephone and our driver will call.

EDDIE CICOTTE, WHITE SOX PITCHER, DISPLAYS HIS SUPERSTITIOUS STREAK

Superstition is a great little institution, especially as applied to baseball players. One could no more separate the average player from his belief in the uncanny world of magic than one could argue Buck Weaver out of a base hit. There is the case of Eddie Cicotte, for instance.

After what has happened to this eminent shiner ball and knuckle ball expert this year, ball players will be more securely entrenched in the beliefs that sway their activities and influence the action of their managers, writes George S. Robbins in Chicago News.

Cicotte is Superstitious. "Eddie, I want you to pitch the first game of the year," said Kid Gleason, addressing Cicotte.

"I'd rather not, boss," replied Cicotte.

"Why not—what's the argument?" asked the Kid.

Then this famed finger unfolded the most amazing story that the Kid had heard in many a day. Gleason, who doesn't believe in superstition, just had to listen to Eddie.

"You see Kid, when I've pitched an opener I've had a rotten season," explained the fussy Cicotte. "I appreciate the honor of being asked to hurl the first game and all that, but I don't care for the honor—I want to win. When I've not pitched the opener I've won."

Gleason was reluctant to accede to this amazing request. The first impulse of the scrappy leader would have been to give a ball player a nice little cuff, reminding him painfully of his indiscretion. Cicotte, however, stands ace high with the Kid and Ainsmith is catching better than ever and hitting in fine style. He has changed his system at the plate. Figuring Ty Cobb a pretty fair hitter, he copied the Georgian's style, and seems to be getting away with it. Let Eddie tell the story himself.

BOXING MATCH ON JULY 9 FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Al Doty of Canton, O., Will Endeavor to Win Crown From Jack Britton.

BOUT TO GO 10 ROUNDS

Preparations Are Being Made to Care for Between 5,000 and 6,000 Persons on That Day; Doty is Coming Here to Complete Training This Week.

The biggest fight in the history of Connelville or Fayette county will be staged here on Wednesday, July 9, the last day of the home-coming celebration for the soldiers, when Al Doty, contender for the welterweight championship of the world, will meet Jack Britton, holder of that title.

Doty is expected in the city this week to complete his training for the bout, which is the highest pinnacle he has reached in his ring career. He has been working hard for his engagement with Britton and the champion realizes he will have the toughest proposition he has ever faced on his hands.

Connelville boxing fans are indeed fortunate they will have opportunity to witness such a scrap right at home. It is considered in boxing circles as next in importance at this time to the Willard-Dempsey bout.

Not only in Connelville is the match attracting attention. All over Fayette county interest is being stirred up, especially when the news reaches the ears of the fans that the bout is to be a championship. The fight will be a hummer all through. Doty is after the title and Britton is prepared to defend it to the last round. The scrap will go for ten frames. Friends and admirers of both principals from all over Western Pennsylvania will be here for the occasion.

Contracts have been signed by all the figures in the matches and forfeits posted. This insures the appearance of the men advertised and guarantees the promised championship bout will not be a fizzle.

The problem of selecting a referee is now before the sports committee. Britton asked to be allowed to select the official for the fight, but Doty thinks this is asking too much. To come to a final decision the athletic committee will name a committee of three Fayette county men this evening who will be empowered to name the official. Their decision will not be changed.

The fight is scheduled to take place at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. This hour will not interfere with any other event on the day's program and the sun will have cooled off sufficiently by that time so that it will not be uncomfortable in the open. Preparations will be made to take care of 5,000 people.

Preliminary bouts will be between Dick DeSaunders and Ray Pryle, K. O. Circus and Young Phillips. Joe Calferty of Scotland, the sailor, will fight J. Donnelly of Uniontown in an opener. A wrestling match is also being arranged for. Joe Humbertson of this city will be one of the principals. The name of the other has not yet been announced.

The Greatest Holiday in American History

ONE HUNDRED and forty-three years ago when that old Liberty Bell in Philadelphia rang out until it cracked with its clang, clang, clang of American Freedom, they little thought in those Thirteen Banded Colonies—and they thought less on the other side of the Atlantic—that the day would surely come when the echo of that Liberty, so nobly proclaimed by those brave men, would some day sound round the world, and the armies of Free America would decide the liberation and Peace of the World!

But such has been our destiny, in the Progress of Mankind, and the Liberty now achieved is to be celebrated on Independence Day, not by America alone, but by the Free Peoples of the whole World!

The Holiday will be celebrated in many ways—by parading, by playing at many sports, by motoring trips, by every form of being happy that men and women choose; for it will be a great day of Happiness.

It is our mission to serve you with necessities for the occasion. They are here in full supply and our service is always courteous and completely efficient.

What may we do for you?

MORE THAN one million Thermos vessels are used throughout the civilized world, by motorists, yachtsmen, travelers, explorers, hunters, office workers and in lunch kits by children at school and working men at the factory.
